

A Message From
Harry J. Aslan
President, Lions International

Dear Fellow Lions:

Today, for more than one million civic-minded men around the world, membership in a Lions Club offers an unequalled opportunity to serve their communities and their fellow-man. It is an opportunity for each Lion to give of himself in a spirit of unselfish humanitarianism.

Community needs and global human suffering continue to grow. If Lions are to respond accordingly, their numbers must also increase. Membership recruitment is, therefore, vital if Lions International is to maintain its leadership role of global voluntary service.

I urge every Lion to actively participate in this October's Anniversary Membership Development Program. There must be scores of men in every community who would gladly become Lions. But, they must be invited to join, and this is the responsibility of the active club members.

So extend your hand to men you know would be good, involved Lions. Strengthen your club and our entire International Association by providing these men with the opportunity to be of service in your own community and in the community of the world.

Sincerely yours,

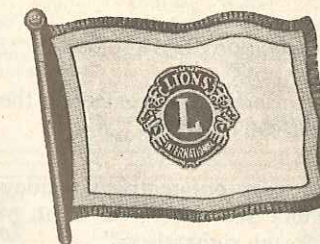

Harry J. Aslan
President
Lions International
